Chapter 1: Hunt for the Dragon Balls (Babunia Saga)

Robotic Thief in Village

1st Arc

Daniel has found the young monkey boy, Jacob, holding his dragon ball. The robot approaches Jacob and respectfully asks for the ball. Jacob holds it tightly, not wanting to let it go.

"Huh? What are you?" - Jacob asked, confused by the strange being in front of him.

"This ball is mine. I found it. You can't take it." - Jacob replies, defiantly.

"burps Sorry, those were my exhausts. Well, if you won't give it to me willingly, we will have to fight." - Daniel responds, his robotic nature showing through.

The battle commences, as Daniel takes action towards the young monkey boy, Jacob. In a flash, the robot appears before the boy and tries to grab the dragon ball out of his hands. Jacob is quick to dodge the attack though, and with a swift motion to the legs, he sweeps Daniel off of his feet, making him fall to the ground. Angry, the robot gets up and fires an energy blast towards the monkey boy, forcing him to leap out of the way and dodge.

Daniel goes into a battle stance as he charges his energy for another attack. He suddenly realizes that he could use technology to his advantage. Daniel executes command to his robotic body: "Try-Catch". The robot instantly changes his strategy, focusing on catching Jacob, rather than attacking him. He moves with lightning speed, attempting to grab the young monkey boy in his hands.

Daniel catches Jacob, and pummels him down to the ground. The young monkey boy screams in pain as the robot's immense physical strength overpowers him and he takes a beating. Seeing the opportunity, Daniel grabs the dragon ball from Jacob and holds the ball in his hand with a tight grip.

Jacob lies on the ground, beaten and bruised. He looks up to see Daniel running off, having taken his dragon ball. The young monkey boy yells out after him in anger, while Daniel laughs and runs away, pleased that he now has the dragon ball within his possession.

Jacob lies beaten on the ground, having lost the battle against the robot. The pain and exhaustion from the fight has caused him to lose consciousness. Daniel is long gone, having successfully fled with the first dragon ball.

A while after the battle, Jacob slowly wakes up in a village house. He is confused as to how he got here, and his body still feels sore from the beating. He looks around in his surroundings, trying to remember what had happened before he passed out.

As Jacob lays there, a female figure walks into the house, her identity unknown to him. She is introduced as 'Pola', and she is a girl working in the village as a hunter. Her presence makes the young monkey boy wonder what her role here is, and the purpose of her visit.

As Pola, the girl hunter, enters the house, she can tell that Jacob is awake. She moves to his side and explains to him what had been taking place while he had been unconscious. She tells him about the robot, Daniel, who had shown up and beaten him up, after which the machine had taken his dragon ball. Jacob is confused, having no recollection of the events since he had lost consciousness.

As Pola explains the situation, Jacob immediately jumps out of bed, not having any time to waste in getting back his dragon ball. He starts looking around the room for any items that he can take with him to start a hunt for Daniel, the robot holding his dragon ball.

After finding some items that he can take with him, Jacob moves towards Pola. He asks her if she would be willing to help him in his quest to retrieve the dragon ball from Daniel, the robot who had taken it from him.

Pola agrees to help the young monkey boy on his quest, so the two of them venture outside the village, searching for the robot with the stolen dragon ball.

Meanwhile, Daniel, the robot, has arrived back at the base of his creator, Babunia. The machine feels a sense of pride as he holds the first dragon ball in his hand. Babunia, the mad scientist, is also pleased with her creation's progress so far, and gives him the next task.

"Good job, my creation." - Babunia says, pleased with the robot's successful retrieval of the first dragon ball.

"Your next task is to find the rest of the six dragon balls, and bring them back to me, so that I may complete my goal."

Daniel nods his head in understanding, and acknowledges the new given task. He leaves the base of his creator, Babunia, to find another dragon ball.

Meanwhile, Jacob and Pola venture outside the village and search for a device that will help them with finding the rest of the dragon balls.
